Director, Norwegian Institute of Public Health
Oslo, Norway

Dr. Jennifer R. Harris is a senior research at the Norwegian Institute of Public Health (NIPH) in Oslo. She is the founder and director of the NIPH twin program of research and is also a consulting expert at the National Institute of Aging to develop research directions integrating genetics and genomics with the behavioral and social sciences. She has extensive research and administrative experience with twin research and is currently conducting twin studies in physical and mental health, leads the Ethics Core in the GenomEUtwin project which is based on the major twin cohorts in an EU coordinated action to harmonize biobanks in Europe and has also served on the steering committee at the Swedish Twin Registry. Her research integrates genetics and developmental approaches for the purpose of studying disease etiology, obesity, asthma, health behaviors, health perceptions and psychological well-being.
