

Partnerships for Environmental Public Health

Strengthening a Dynamic Environmental Public Health Network for Tomorrow:
Advancing science through critical reflection

Opportunities for Small Business Applicants

The NIEHS is interested in developing educational and training resources for students of all ages, educators, health care professionals and the lay community to enhance their knowledge of environmental health sciences. These resources are an important part of our communication strategy that encompasses training, education, and community outreach. Resources may be directed at all levels of education: Kindergarten through 12th grade, undergraduate, graduate, adult education, health care professional training, and community outreach. Products may include:

- Mobile and distance strategies to increase knowledge of environmental health topics and to apply that knowledge to daily living
- Gaming approaches including materials for use within or outside the classroom.
- Video and DVD-based educational outreach materials that can be used in the classroom, at community meetings, or for professional development, including continuing medical education courses.
- Educational television shows with accompanying lessons or activities

For other small business research grant opportunities see the NIEHS website:

<http://www.niehs.nih.gov/research/supported/programs/sbir/index.cfm>

Program Contact

Daniel Shaughnessy, Ph.D.
SBIR and STTR programs

Tel (919) 541-2506
shaughn1@niehs.nih.gov