Minority Workers Training Program: Success and Best Practices Report

- SUMMARY: Since 1995, the MWTP trained approximately 10,000 people in more than 30 communities across 20 states with nearly 70% employment.
- Address the significant impediments to training and employment that challenge underserved and disadvantaged people.
- Increase sustainable employment opportunities, promote economic development, address health disparities, and advance environmental justice
- Transformed the lives of trainees, families, and communities traditionally overburdened by economic distress and exposures to hazardous environmental conditions.
- Provides significant contributions to environmental justice by providing training and increasing job opportunities.
- The MWTP provides a model and useful guidance for other federally-funded worker training programs.

Key Findings

- Program benefited thousands of trainees and families in underserved and disadvantaged communities.
- Life skills training, other pre-employment training, and mentoring and counseling are fundamental to the
- Awardees established numerous valuable partnerships such program advisory boards which are critical to individual and overall program success.
- Program provides alternatives to costly incarceration and effectively supports ex-offender rehabilitation and reductions in recidivism.
- Individual program evaluations are essential to improving the effectiveness and impacts of the MWTP.
- Program advances environmental justice and address environmental/occupational health disparities in the workplace and at the community level.
- Program graduates have helped support several significant national disaster response efforts in multiple states.
- Served as a model for other federally funded worker training programs.

- NIEHS should:
 - Continue to provide funding for critical life skills and other job readiness instruction.
 - Expand the scope of performance measures to account for graduates who pursue further educational opportunities, other certifications, and/or achieve job promotion.
 - Provide training and facilitate opportunities for awardees to conduct outreach to other organizations that might provide additional funding for these programs.
 - Disseminate this final guidance report to other federal agencies
 - Assist MWTP awardees gain access to additional funding sources and employment opportunities for program graduates.
 - Conduct a follow-up evaluation of the significant contributions to minority worker training and job creation provided by all WETP Awardees.

- MWTP Awardees should:
 - Continue to expand relationships with the judicial and corrections systems to identify suitable ex-offenders for the training program.
 - Continue to expand training to include additional areas of green industry and consider the growing concerns about climate change when working to identify new areas of training.
 - Explore partnership opportunities with cities working to implement Clean Water Act consent decrees.
 - Consider working more with local government and private contractors to include program graduates as a part of first source hiring agreements and project labor agreements.
 - Increase efforts to recruit greater percentages of other minority and underserved populations, such as Native Americans, Pacific Islanders, and women, into the program.

Dillard University trainees exhibit new skills in community service-learning project.
